Commencement Bay Corrugated Has Big Plans with Sales Workflow
Upcoming implementation of Amtech's new module to help streamline processes

Fort Washington, PA – (July 5, 2011) – Cosmo DeNicola, owner and President of Amtech Software, is pleased to announce that Commencement Bay Corrugated, a full service corrugated box plant based in Orting Washington, has purchased Amtech's new Workflow module.

"The list of benefits we hope to obtain when we have fully integrated WorkFlow into all of our processes is too long to sum up," stated Corey Layman, Customer Service Manager at Commencement Bay, "but the reason that factored most in purchasing the module from Amtech would be the overall time we hope to save in tracking the status of an item. Just by looking at the screen, everyone from the salesperson to the production supervisors will be able to see instantaneously what they previously waited hours for."

The Workflow module from Amtech eliminates costly communication gaps and ultimately increases departmental productivity - providing sales reps with more selling time in front of customers and prospects. The module is a powerful tool easily modified to meet each plant's unique business requirements, allowing the them to create the steps in the Workflow process. Now as each department works on a request, everyone involved in the process is aware of its status and expected completion.
